of Alabama, is prominent, as he la chairman of the Ways and Means Com-mittee, and Democratic floor leader. He is to be Senator from Alabama. Representative Underwood, a candidate for the presidency in 1912, with twenty years of service in the House behind him, has been a dominant figure in Washington national life during the washington national life during the past four years. He wrote the Underwood tariff bill, held the Democrats together at certain stages of its pre-liminary history by sheer force of will, and has held the unwieldly majority in check during several trying crises in other legislation. He is admired by Republicans and Democrats alike, and se personally extremely nonuity. That is personally extremely popular. That he is popular politically is proved in his own State, where he defeated Rich-mond Pearson Hobson in the senatorial

He has been a school-teacher, but he developed into one of the shrewdest politicians in Ohio. He was in the limelight considerably during the tariff debate, and his fight against free wool was a classic.

Representative Richard Bartholdt, of St. Louis, the great peace advocate of this Congress, has announced he would retire form public life after twenty years' service, and is not a candidate for the next House. While they talk of those who will be seen no longer around the House, there is lively speculation as to the chances of those old ling Republicans who are Hopfing "to cor back." And chief of these is "Uncle Joe" Cannon. He was defeated by O'Hair in 1912, not so much by reason of Democratic votes, but because of the third party—the progres-sives—running in his district, "Uncle Joe" had served thirty-eight years. If he should be elected and serves anothe Congress he will have broken all rec-Other Illinois Veterans.

Two other Illinois veterans who are seeking election are William McKinley and William A. Rodenberg. They suffered as "Uncel Joe" did, from Bull Moose invasions. McKinley was for years chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, and Rodenberg was so much of a republican that he radiated the doctrines of the party wherever he went. Both were well drilled members of the "old guard." They helped unhorse Colonel Roosevelt at the republican national convention of 1912, and the Colonel is still bitter. He has promised Illinois progressives to speak against these two old-time Republicans in their districts this month.

ders helping to rebuild Europe and we will have no time to lament over anything.

As a result of the war there has been a more or less disarrangement of business and finance, but it is now well in hand and will entirely stop as soon as peace is in sight—and that should be soon.

This war has given the United States a greater opportunity to increase its foreign trade than any other country has ever had. German foreign commerce is practically stopped and the commerce of other European nations at war is very severely effected. A large part of this trade will surely come to us if we are properly equipped to take it over. The opportunity presented requires a first-class merchant marine which this country has not had since the Civil war. With the re-establishment of a merchant marine the commerce of the United States will again be transported to all parts of the world in American bottoms, and we will become the greatest financial power in the world. We believe some new records for big business are not far ahead for the entire United States of America.

AMERICA'S OPPORTUNITY.

There are altogether too many pessimists in this country who are kicking about the effect of the European war on business. Coming as it did immediately after a period of depression it kindled anow in the minds of some people the feeling that prosperity would not return for a long time. As a matter of fact the war's big cost will fall on Europe and as soon as the final treaties of peace are signed the commercial of peace are signed the commercial and financial ascendency of the United States is bound to begin—then we will have to get busy and figure out ways and means to fill orders helping to rebuild Europe and we will have no time to lament over anything.

The Human Element

There are three parties to every telephone conversation-the person calling, the trained operator, and the person who answers. All three share alike the responsibility for quick and accurate service.

The person calling should give the correct number in a distinct voice, speaking directly into the transmitter, and wait at the telephone until the called party answers or the operator reports. The person called should answer promptly.
